THE POVERTY—CURE.

BY LAURA J. CURTIS.

Mrs. Durand was an invalid. For many years she had been a victim to a complicated and baffling disease, which, for want of a better name, was christened by her physicians and friends, "nervous debility.'

The slightest excitement or exertion left her utterly prostrated and weary, and every nerve and muscle in her system kept her painfully conscious of their existence The luxuries that surrounded her were only to her a realization of the fable of the cup of Tantalus. True, she had an elegant carriage, fine horses, and many servants; but the fatigue of riding out was far greater than the pleasure of a drive, and she rarely attempted it. She had a fine library, but books she had never cared much for; and if she had loved reading, her eyes were so weak as to put that amusement out of the question. An extensive and choicely kept conservatory was a part of Dr. Durand's establishment, the odors of the flowers made his invalid wife faint and sick; she had no taste for fancy-work—that busy idleness which saves so many women from ennui. Embroidery, crotchet, knitting and netting, she had tried in turn, and each tired her and made her head ache. Her three children generally paid her a visit once a day; but it would be difficult to decide which enjoyed it least, or was more pleased to have it over—the boys or their mother. —The children were glad to escape from the hushed, gloomy chamber, where everything they did seemed to be out of place and wrong, so constantly were they checked for being boisterous or troublesome; and Mrs. Durand experienced a sensation of relief when she had kissed them all, and seen them safely marshalled out of the room by their nurse—for she had a comfortable consciousness that she had seen the last of them for one day at least.

After this morning visit, she had nothing to do but to lean her aching head wearily back on the pillowed easy-chair until her physician's coming roused her from her listlessness for a few moments.—This call, and a still briefer one from her husband, just before dinner, were all that varied the monotony of her life.

Mr. Durand was a kind-hearted man, and reasonably fond of his wife; he had spared no pains or expense to restore her to health, he had made no objection to her trial of the pathies—allopathy, homeopathy hydropathy—and had only shrugged his shoulders when, as a last resort, healing mediums were called to the rescue. He had gratified her every whim, had taken her to every variety of climate; without a word of remonstrance, had visited all the Springs, far and near, in search of that health which was nowhere to be found, until at last, after going round the whole circle of remedies in vain, it had been Mrs. Durand's own proposal to remain at home under the care of her own family physician.

Meanwhile, as his wife's malady, though incurable, seemed not at all likely to prove fatal, Mr. Durand's anxiety, which at first had been extreme, died away. It grew to be a matter of course that Maria should be sick, and his daily call and his sterotyped dialogue became equally habitual:—

'Well, how do you feel to-day, Maria?'

'No better'—with a sigh. 'My head is as bad as ever.'

'Sorry to hear it.'

A pause—then a glance at his watch—"It is near dinner-time. Good night, Maria. I wish you could sit at table with me.'

This conversation, almost without a variation, had been repeated day after day, until it was as much a part of Mr. Durand's daily life as his dinner and cigar, the evening's paper, and the quiet rubber of whist with a few cronies, that followed it.

The lonely evenings Mrs. Durand spent as she did her lonely days, reclining in her chair or on a lounge—her thin, white hands shaded by exquisite and costly lace, folded and lying idly in her lap, while with half shut eyes, she gave herself up to sad reveries.

It seemed almost like a dream to her to look back, as she often did, to the time when, a rosy, plump and joyous country maiden, she had raked hay, made butter and cheese, washed dishes, and even scrubbed the white floor of her aunt's neat kitchen. Her small hands, now so white and soft, had been red and hard once; her transparent cheek had been sun-burned and browned, but her rustic beauty had won the heart of the rich city merchant, whom business brought for a few weeks to the neighborhood Makleton, and not many months after became his wife. City life was entirely new to Maria Durand, and for a few seasons she had enjoyed it to the full. Parties, the opera, and all sorts of gayeties succeeded each other, until suddenly her health failed. And now, so young, while life held out to her a cup overflowing with a delicious and intoxicating draught, one drop of bitterness had poisoned it all. It was hard, indeed, and poor Maria Durand shed many scalding tears as, in the solitude of her own room, she contrasted the present with the past.

She had plenty of time for such reflections, for the calls of her many friends, and the inquiries for the health of 'dear Mrs. Durand,' had grown less and less frequent until they had almost entirely ceased and she who had been once a reigning belle—admired, flattered and envied—was now forgotten.

The circle in which Mrs. Durand had moved was not unusually heartless; but sickness is a test which never fails to distinguish the counterfeit from the genuine friendship, and it must be confessed that few human beings have a fountain of sympathy which will sustain a drain of four or five years in one direction, without at times running dry.

As if conscious of this, invalids are very apt to make up for the deficiencies of others by bestowing all their own sympathies on themselves; absorbed in their own sufferings, they forget all others. Mrs. Durand was no exception to the general rule, or she would have observed that her husband was growing pale, thin, wrinkled and care-worn. He was strangely absent minded—he came up to her room after dinner several times, and sat there silent and moody; if she addressed him he replied at random, and she made no further attempt at conversation.

She was lying on her couch one evening when Mr. Durand entered the room. She did not look up; she hardly spoke—for she had felt unusually ill all day, and her head was still throbbing painfully.—Her husband approached her, and stood by her side.

'Maria,' said he, 'I should like to talk with you a little, if you are able to bear it.'

Something in his voice startled her; she looked up and for the first time saw how haggard and changed he had grown.

'What is it?' she cried, starting up.—'How fearfully pale you look. The children?'

'Are perfectly well,' he replied.

'Has anything happened to you, Robert?'

'Maria,' he said, hardly heeding her words, 'I am ruined—bankrupt.'

'He buried his face in his hands, and his whole frame shook with emotion. In an instant his wifes arms were round his neck, her kisses on his brow, and her voice whispered words of comfort.

'But you, dear Maria,' he said 'feeble as you are, what is to become of you? I could bear it myself, but to think of you and the children—it almost unmans me.'

'Is all lost?' she asked.

'I fear so. My honor, thank God, will remain unstained; but nothing will be left after the payment of my debts.'

'And how did it happen?'

Her husband briefly told her of his misfortunes, which were mainly owing to losses at sea—for he was largely engaged in navigation; he rehearsed his struggles, told of his sleepless nights and anxious days, and Maria listened with moistened eyes and parted lips.

'My own dear husband!' she said at last, kissing him fondly; 'and what are your plans for the future?'

'I have made none as yet. I have been overwhelmed in the present trouble. The future looks dark, indeed. When I think of you, in ill health, requiring every comfort, and yet feel that I shall be unable to supply your wants—'

He stopped, for his voice was choked with emotion.

'Do not speak so sadly, Robert. The future to me does not look dark. You made your own fortune—you can do it again, and as for me, if I have lived in luxury for many years, I do not forget that I was once a poor country lass, and lived very happily without the many appliances of wealth that you have bestowed on me. Dear Robert, let us submit with a good grace to our present troubles.'

Mr. Durand shook his head sadly.—'You speak lightly, Maria, of giving up luxuries, forgetting that they have grown to be necessaries with you. If you were strong and well, it would be different; even then it would be hard for you to change this house for one suited to our income, or rather lack of income, and, instead of having servants ready to do your bidding, to wait not only on yourself, but, on others.'

'It is very pleasant to be waited on, I admit,' said Mrs. Durand, 'but I can do without it; and I have not forgotten how to sweep and make beds, and bake. Try me, and you shall see that I am as good a cook as our French artiste. We will be happy yet, Robert. Riches are comfortable, but poverty shall not make us miserable.'

Cheered in spite of himself by his wife's spirit, Mr. Durand began to talk of the future, and the evening, which began so gloomily, ended quite pleasantly.

Robert Durand felt already like a new man; his wife's sympathy lightened the load which had well-nigh crushed him, and he set about the settlement of his business with a fresh courage.

From the week of his fallen fortunes he came out with a large stock of self-respect—for no man could charge him with dishonorable conduct—and a very small stock of capital with which to begin the world anew.

Mrs. Durand meantime, was not idle.—It was her part to see to the settlement of the domestic affairs, and though her head and limbs ached, yet she never complained. But, to her surprise, her sleepless nights vanished—what opiates had failed to do, the magic of fatigue accomplished; and when at last the family were settled in a small but comfortable house, though she was very tired, she felt that she was really better than she had been for a long time.

As months passed, her apetite, which had been capricious and variable, became natural and healthy; dyspepsia slowly yielded its hold upon her. Her thin features became rounded, her figure gained plumpness and at last a faint color tinged her cheeks! In one short year the invalid Mrs. Durand, was transformed into a fresh-looking matron.

With her health her spirits returned, and the children astonished her one day by telling her that 'they loved her a great deal better than they used to, because she was so nice;' which adjective, when she pressed for its interpretation, was further explained to mean, that 'she didn't tell them to keep still all the time, and she baked them nice cakes, and she told them stories, and she looked a great deal prettier.'

This latter compliment Mr. Durand, who had been a listener to the conservation, emphatically pronounced to be true enough. 'And she is as good as she is pretty, little folks,' he added, pressing his arm about her waist.

Mrs. Durand looked up with a smile.

'We are not so very miserable, after all,' said she slily. Her husband's only reply was a closer embrace.

Years had passed, and Mr. Durand was again a rich man; once more his wife was mistress of a fine establishment—once more she attended the gay parties. But now she sat among the older people, and looked on to see her girls and boys enjoy, with all the zest of youth, the music and dancing.

She was still a healthy, comely matron, whose sparkling eyes, blooming cheeks and luxuriant hair, many a younger woman envied.

She was sitting one evening at a party, with a knot of her friends, when a pale young creature joined them.

She looked so feeble and miserable, that Maria's thoughts at once reverted to her own past for Mrs. Tyler seemed a perfect counterpart of what she had been at her age. So absorbed was she in her own thoughts, that she hardly heeded the conversation around her, till the mention of her own name started her.

'I was telling Mrs. Tyler,' continued Mrs. Lorimer, 'that she reminded me of you when you were so ill many years ago. It was the Water-cure; I think, that restored your health; was it not, Mrs. Durand?'

'No, Mrs. Lorimer; it was the Poverty-cure!'

'The what?' cried a chorus of voices.

'The Poverty-cure,' repeated Mrs. Durand. 'It was not very pleasant to take, but it restored me to health.'

'You are talking in enigmas; please explain,' said Mrs. Tyler roused to a little animation.

Thus pressed, Mrs. Durand gave briefly the history of that period of her life which followed their reverse of fortune. As she concluded her story, her husband joined the group to conduct her to the supper-room.

Rising, and taking his arm, she said—

'And so I regained my health; but that is not all for which I have to thank the Poverty-cure.'

CONSIDER ME SMITH.

There is a very good story in the papers of the day, which was played by old Dr. Caldwell, formerly of the University of North Carolina.

The old Doctor was a small man, and lean, but as hard an angular as the most irregular of pine knots. He looked as if he might be rough, but he did not seem strong. Nevertheless he was among the knowing ones, reputed to be as agile as a 'cat,' and in addition was by no means deficient in knowledge of the 'noble science of self-defence.' Besides he was as cool as a cucumber. Well, in the freshman class of a certain year was a burly beef mountaineer of eighteen or nineteen. This genius conceived a great contempt for old Bolus' physical dimensions and his soul was horrified that one so deficient in muscle should be so potential in his rule.

Poor Jones—that's what we'll call him—had no idea of moral force. At any rate he was not inclined to knock under, and be controlled despotically by a man that he imagined he could tie and whip.—He at length determined to give the gentleman a genteel private thrashing some night in the College Campus, pretending to mistake him for some fellow student.

Shortly after, on a dark and rainy night Jones met the Doctor crossing the Campus. Walking up to him abruptly.

'Hallaw Smith! you rascal—is this you?'

And with that he struck the old gentleman a blow on the side of the face that nearly felled him.

Old Bolus said nothing, but squared himself, and at it they went. Jone's youth, weight and muscle, made him an 'ugly customer,' but after a round or two, the Doctor's science began to tell, and in a short time he had knocked his beefy antagonist down, and was astraddle of his chest with one hand on his throat, and the other dealing vigorous cuffs on the side of his head.

'Ah stop! I beg pardon, Doctor Caldwell!—a mistake—for heaven's sake, Doctor,' groaned Jones, who thought he was about to be eaten up, 'I—I really thought it was Smith!'

The doctor replied with a word and a blow alternately,—

'It makes no difference, for all present purposes consider me Smith?'

And, it is said, that old Bolus gave Jones such a pounding, then and there, as probably prevented his ever making another mistake as to personal identity, at least on the College campus.

A SINGULAR PROPHECY.

The following curious paragraph is from the Cologne Correspondent of the Continental Review:

"We may now afford to smile at the singular prophecy of the Westphalian shepherd, who lived some hundred and fifty years ago, and who predicted a terrible European war, in the course of which the Turks should cool the feet of their horses in the Rhine. These things, thus runs the tradition, were to come to pass when carriages ran without horses, and the Prussian soldiers were dressed like the soldiers who crucified Christ. Carriages do run without horses, and the silhouette of a Prussian soldier in his tunic and helmet, is in all respects that of a Roman legionery.—But the superstitutious who speculated upon this singular prophecy, could never reconcile with it the decline of Turkish power and the manifest improbability of the Sultan's troops carrying the standard of the Prophet to the banks of the Rhine. They forgot that France has Algerine regiments of Spahis and Zouaves, and that many of them are as good Mussulmans as ever walked the streets of Samboul."

The latest case of absence of mind is that of a ship carpenter, who bit off the end of a copper spike and drove a plug of tobacco into the vessel's bottom. He did not discover his mistake till the vessel spit in his face.

EXCITING RACE—STAKES $275,000.

From L. D. Rucker, Superintendent of the Cleveland and Toledo Railroad, the Cleveland Leader obtains the following particulars of an exciting race, in which the steeds were iron horses, and the stakes greater than have ever been known on any track. Mr. Rucker had the facts from John D. Campbell, Esq., Superintendent of the Michigan Southern and Northern Indiana Railroad. One day last week, as the Eastward-bound Express train reached Laporte, Indiana a passenger stepped off while the engine was being replenished with wood and water, and walked back and forth on the platform, and continued to walk until the whistle sounded. The other passengers got on board, and the train passed off, but the gentleman still walked on. A few minutes after the train had gone, a station man saw the pedestrian, and going up to him asked in a surprised tone:—

'What the—are you doing here?'

The man started, opened his eyes, and looked around bewildered. The fact was, he had been fatigued and droped asleep while walking. Rousing himself, he asked—

"Why! Where am I?"

"Where are you? At Laporte."

"Where's the train I came on?"

"That left ten minutes ago.

"Ten minutes ago and left me! I must go on that train. It is a question of life or death with me. Can you get me to it? Have you an engine here? Where is the Superintendent?

The section-master had an office near by, and the two went to find that official and to procure an engine. The traveller stated his case—he must go on—could not delay—and offered the officer $250 if he would put him aboard the train. This strange demand and strange offer caused the station master to hasten to do what he could. The fire was not out in the engine that had drawn the train to that point; the bargain was settled; a draft given on New York for the $250, and in ten minutes the traveller started with an engine to overtake the flying Express. After rushing on for thirty or forty miles some connection give way about the engine. The engine was stopped—the engineer found the difficulty, in a very few minutes had a wooden pin whittled out and fitted to supply the deficiency. With this on they flew. The train had of course many miles the start of them, and despite the wooden pin the engineer crowded on steam and tore through the country at a fearful rate. Thirty miles of the distance passed was run in twenty-seven minutes, but the engagement was that they should overtake the train and do it they must, and do it they did, but not until more than 100 miles had been run, and they were approaching Toledo. Having at length overtaken and stopped the train and hurried on board, the traveller went eagerly to a berth in a sleeping car, and took therefrom a carpet bag containing $275,000. His treasure was safe—none had molested it, and, dismissing his faithful courier, he went on his way rejoicing at the success of his perilous and exciting adventure.

The Raleigh Standard publishes the explanation of Mr. Rayner's language in the Convention contained in the State, and then adds:

We are at the first of this "moral, social, and political demoralization," described by Mr. Rayner. It exists only in Mr. Rayner's imagination. It is true, Mr. Rayner's course in the last campaign for the Presidency rendered him unpopular in this community and throughout the State, but we never heard any one advise or threaten physical force against him. We never heard, and it cannot be proved, that Democrats 'frequently resort' to 'force and violence,' instead of 'reason and argument,' to carry out their purposes.

But who had spoken of physical violence in the First District? Had Mr. Smith, or Mr. Rayner, or any one else been threatened? Not that we have heard of. Mr. Rayner's advice, therefore, about 'hickory sticks' was in bad taste, gratuitous, uncalled for.

Mr. Rayner is notoriously the most violent man in politics in North-Carolina.—We speak deliberately, and we repeat that Mr. Rayner has less prudence and less self-control, when engaged in politics, than any man in the State. An extremist himself, it is natural that he should have thought of 'violence,' and should have counselled his friends to prepare their, 'hickory sticks.' Let us wait and see whether Mr. Rayner will injure or benefit Mr. Smith by his canvass of the First District.

Napoleon and His Soldiers.—An intelligent Paris correspondent, speaking of the present Emperor of France, says he has done in fact so much for the soldier, so much for the amelioration of the ordinary hardships of life, that the French army of to-day loves its Emperor, and would follow him to the end of the world. His appearance at the head of the army of Italy, will be the signal for such a burst of enthusiasms, and of daring feats of arms, as will strike terror in the ranks of the enemy.

True Isn't It.—Politeness goes a great ways: Henry Ward Beecher says, 'an imprudent clerk can do almost as much injury to his store as the neglect of the proprietor to advertise his goods.' Two undoubted and significant facts, which every one interested will please bear in mind.

☞ A Yankee and Mississippi gambler were playing poker together. 'I wonder,' said the blackleg, 'where all the aces are? I haven't seen one for some time.' 'I kin tell you,' said the Yankee, 'three on 'em is up your coat sleeves, and t'other one's in my bute.'

☞ "It is requisite that our friends should stir themselves in behalf of the papers in the district which are advocating their principles Know Nothing sheets will be scattered broad-cast over every county, and the slanders and charges which they contain must be met and refuted by the Democratic papers."—Pioneer.

Will the Editor of the Pioneer be kind enough to let us know in the next issue of this paper, whether he alludes to "The State" as one of the "Know Nothing sheets" that will be engaged in scattering slanders broad-cast over the district. We desire him simply to say, yes or no"—State.

We were absent, when the above appeared in the State, and we have not been able to procure a copy of the paper containing it before.

It is a little singular that a paper that is constantly indulging in denunciations of the Democratic party, of which we claim to be an humble member, should catechise us upon a general remark, and make itself an exception to the hundred Know Nothing sheets that are circulating in the district. Still we have no objection to answering the question, but prefer doing it in our own way.

Had the State asked us if we charged it with willingly or knowingly circulating "slanders," we should have unhesitatingly answered, no; we believe the editors to be gentlemen, and, we hope, incapable of such conduct, but when they ask us if we charge them with circulating slanders against the Democratic party, we as unhesitatingly say, yes. The State may believe all it says about us; we do not; if we could credit but the half of what it charges, we could no longer fraternize with the party. Because the State is honest in what it charges, it does not necessarily follow that those charges are true; we think them untrue, hence we characterize them as 'slanders.'

We make no objection, but rather admire, this exhibition of nice feeling on the part of the State, but we would respectfully submit, that consistency would have excluded the terms "Democratic Popes," and "Locofoco teamsters' from its coulmns when commenting upon an article of ours.

BRAGG!

The memory of those who heard the speeches of Mr Smith in the canvass two years ago, must be short if they have forgotten the triumphant flourish with which he closed each and all of his addresses.—When contemplating the prospects of victory, his eloquence was sublime, and the smiles that wreathed his aimable countenance when telling his opponent of the certainty of his defeat and of his own election, betokened the inward satisfaction which the reflection afforded. He was disappointed, but he has not learned wisdom by experience. He is playing the same game again, and he is doomed to another disappointment.

EVERETT'S VARIETIES

Will be in E. City on Wednesday, July 13th, and will remain for two or three days. The Varieties are exhibited under a capacious pavilion capable of accommodating 800 people, all comfortably seated. The entertainment of Everett is spoken of by the press generally as well worth seeing, being free from any objection which either moralist or religionist might urge, and consists of Magic, Music, Comic Eccentricities, Fun, Farce, Frolic, and Foibles. Everett will commence the entertainment with a series of diversified magical illusions and metamorphosis, illustrating the science of NATURAL MAGIC. He will open his Cabinet of Cabalistic Phenomena, introducing new and astounding experiments, together with others already established as beautiful and unrivaled.

Doors open at 8 o'clock, P. M.

☞ "We cannot have any fun after an election," remarked an intelligent young "American" friend to us a short time back, 'therefore we will have our part before hand.' Very wise, thought we, and it is, seems to us that the older 'Americans' in this and the adjacent county, are acting upon the same principle. They are having a little 'fun' occasionally, in the way of pole raisings, speeches, and, we suppose a general jollification. 'Go it whilst you can,' for after the election you cant!

EARLY PEACHES.

The first ripe peaches that we have seen this year were presented to us on yesterday by R. Creecy, Esq., of this County, and were large and fine We think Mr. Creecy is somewhat ahead in the fruit line, as it is a rare thing to see ripe peaches in this section on the 4th of July.

☞ Mr. Smith in his speech in this place, said 'That he had been commissioned by his party to go forth and declare its principles.' There is one of two things in this declaration. Mr. Smith must have forgotten his mission or misunderstood the language of the Convention. Admitting that he was 'commissioned' to proclaim the principles of the Opposition, what does his neglect to obey the command argue?—Either that he found himself incompetent to the task, or there were no principles to proclaim. Mr. Smith did not attempt to set forth any one single measure advocated by his party. He did not tell the people of a solitary principle upon which the 'Opposition' proposed to administer the government. His time was taken up in accusations and charges against the Democratic party, taking it for granted, we suppose, that his hearers were content 'to go it blind.'

We think however, that Mr. Smith was slightly mistaken, and that the Convention refused to commission him for any such purpose. In the proceedings we find nothing of the kind. A simple little thirteen line resolution is all that was reported by the committee, and that being a bill of indictment, he was 'commissioned' as a prosecutor, and not as a promulgator of principles. We may be mistaken in this, as a friend has called our attention to the fact that the minutes of the Convention does not show that the resolution was acted upon, but that it was simply reported.

Our neighbors were particular in enquiring concerning a resolution proposed in the Democratic Convention, and desired to know if it was voted upon. They can doubtless enlighten us in regard to the action had upon the bill of indictment. Supposing that it was properly disposed of, and Mr. Smith comes before the people as a prosecutor, and nothing else. In this capacity he makes out badly, and has not yet been able to make out his case. The jury will assuredly return a verdict of acquittal.

THE 4TH

Was celebrated yesterday with considerable spirit in this town. A national salute announced the opening of our National Anniversary, and at 11 o'clock the Methodist Episcopal Church was crowded with our patriotic citizens to listen to the reading of the Mecklenburg resolves, by Mr. S. Butler, the Declaration of Independence, by Mr. W. E Mann, and an Oration from Richard Creecy Esq. The latter was a chaste and eloquent production, dignified in style, and appropriate to the occasion. The immortal Z Company were out in numbers in the afternoon and added much to the amusement of the day by their fantastical and grotesque appearances. The day closed by a display of fire works.

"WHAT IT COSTS TO BE GOVERNED!"

An Opposition electioneering document, bearing the above title has been sent us by a friend from one of the counties in the district, and is, we imagine, but one of the thousands that have been scattered broad cast through each county to do the work of detraction and misrepresentation. We have examined this precious document and find it filled with the grossest mistatements and fabrications. How any party resorting to such means to accomplish their ends can ever expect to succeed, is a mystery to us. To-day we have only space to expose two of its misrepresentations but shall take it up again that our readers may see the dishonesty of the men that are arrayed against the Democracy. Indeed the exposure that we shall make to-day should be sufficient to betray the fraud that is attempted.

On page 12, Mr. Buchanan is said to have asked Congress for $30 000,000, to be 'placed at his disposal, to be by him, disbursed secretly, without check, restraint or responsibility.' There is not one word of truth in a syllable therein stated. In the first place Mr. Buchanan never asked for any thing of the kind, and all that can be charged against him is found in the following extract from his Annual Message. In speaking of the purchase of Cuba. The President says—

"The publicity which has been given to our former negotiations upon this subject, and the large appropriation which may be required to effect the purpose render it expedient, before making another attempt to renew the negotiation, that I should lay the whole subject before Congress This is especially necessary, as it may become indispensable to success, that I should be intrusted with the means of making an advance to the Spanish government immediately after the singing of the treaty, without awaiting the ratification of it by the Senate. I am encouraged to make this suggestion by the example of Mr. Jefferson, previous to the purchase of Louisiana from France, and by that of Mr. Polk, in view of the acquisition of territory from Mexico. I refer the whole subject to Congress, and commend it to their careful consideration."

Contrast the language of Mr. Buchanan with this statement made in the pamphlet referred to, and the falsity of the latter is at once exposed. But it is stated that he wished the money placed at his disposal to be 'disbursed without check, restraint or responsibility.' This is equally without foundation, if Mr. Buchanan was the author of the $30,000,000 bill, no such accusation could be sustained. That bill distinctly states for what the money shall be used when it shall be used, and is in these words—

"To be used by him, if he shall think fit, in advance of the ratification of the treaty by the Senate: Provided, Said treaty, when signed by the authorized agents of the two governments, and duly ratified by the government of Spain, shall call for the expenditure of the same, or any part thereof."

In the next page it is said that "Every Democratic member of Congress from North Carolina was in favor of conferring upon the President this vast amount of money and power." A more unblushing falsehood was never purpetrated. We are not aware of but one single member of Congress from this State that favored the bill, and that was its author, Mr. Blanch. We know that Dr. Shaw and Mr. Scales, were hostile to it, and yet this miserable trick is sought to be palmed off upon the people.—'O, shame where is thy blush!'

Another, and not less glaring, frabrication appears in the same page, in which the Democratic party is held up as having voted for the bill giving to members of Congress $3000 per session. That bill was passed by an 'Opposition' Congress, and was voted for by only 28 democrats out of about 80 in the House. There were 24 Know Nothings for the bill and only nine against it. The Black Republicens voted 48 for the bill. We ask in all sincerity, can any confidence be placed in a party so destitute of common honesty as to seek to build up a cause by the publication of such gross and palpable mistatements? We ask the honest voter to look to the record examine for yourself, and if after doing so, ask yourself the question, is a party cabable of such conduct worthy of my support.

DESTRUCTIVE CONFLAGRATION IN ELIZABETH CITY!

WEDNESDAY, 6 O'CLOCK, A. M.

We stop the press this morning to announce that our town has been again visited by a destructive conflagration that, in a few hours has laid waste one entire square. About 2 o'clock, the alarm was given, and flames were seen bursting from the carriage establishment of Mr. G. M. Jennings, on first South street, but one door from Road, and immediately in the rear of T. Parr's Cabinet establishment. This was soon in flames and communicated to a dwelling occupied by Mr. G. Kellinger, and from this the fire spread up Road street taking in its course the Drug store of Dr. J. N. Butt. The large double store of Mr. J. B. Fearing, and a store and dwelling of Mr. Wilie Riddick. The remaining portion of the square was occupied by smaller buildings, all of which were consumed.—We have not been able to estimate the loss, but can say that it was very great. The damage and loss in moving is quite heavy. The engines were promptly on the spot and rendered good service.

MONTGOMERY WHITE SULPHUR SRINGS, VA.
JUNE, 28th 1859.

I am a long ways from home, and you may think from the post of duty, but everything is going on right in old Halifax, and if anything should get wrong I can be Telegraphed to in half an hour, and get home by dinner time next day. Mark this however, Halifax is all right, and if work becomes necessary we'll do it.

Since my arrival here, my health which was impaired before, has gotten right again and I weighed at the Salt Sulphur the other day more than ever I did in my life

The route to this place I have before advised you of. From Petersburg to Lynchburg, on the South Side Railroad; and from Lynchburg to this place on the Virginia and Tennessee, which passes within little over a mile of the Springs and on that mile is a Railroad belonging to the proprietors of the Springs, so that to reach this place from yours no staying is necessary at all unless you prefer to stage across from Elizabeth City to Norfolk. The company now have numbers about one hundred and sixty, and it is the largest number at any place in the Mountains, there being only about seventy five to eighty at the old White.

We old men have not lost all taste, and I am sure it would do you good to see some of the pretty women who are here. I doubt if they can be surpassed even by our North Carolina beauties, and you know the old North State is hard to beat in that line. The fact is that she carried the day by considerable odds, last Summer both here and at the Old White. North Carolina is hard to beat at any thing.

From this delightful place (none more so) I took a trip a few days since across to the Salt Sulphur forty miles over the new Turnpike which has just been completed.

The trip was a most agreeable one, and I think I saw some of the finest mountain scenery, eyes ever beheld. No where have I ever seen such and I think I have pretty well gone the rounds of the mountain region both of Virginia and North Carolina. Our party tarried one night from choice, at the celebrated Salt Pond, and I rowed out on the Lake all alone, to enjoy the beauties of the scene. You may attribute my going alone to selfishness if you like, as you may attribute a walk of six miles up the Salt Pond mountains, but that will not diminish the pleasure of the excursion in the least, for I enjoyed it with a full knowledge that the same pleasure was in the reach of others.

I cannot now undertake a description of what I saw and perhaps, with a perfect consciousness that the undertaking would be entirely futile, I never shall, but it was beautiful and lovely in the extreme.

The next morning a number of us walked half a mile up to the Bald Knob, and there I think I beheld such a view as can no where else be seen. With the naked eye I saw distinctly the Peaks of otter over fifty miles distant, as the bird flies and with aid of a Telescope, some of the Peaks of our North Carolina mountains more than a hundred miles distant, were plainly visible. You may see all round, and there is no obstruction to the view as far as the eye or the Telescope can range. You may imagine, the scene was grand sublime, indescribably magnificient, and then your imagination will not comprehend the whole.

Leaving the Salt Pond after breakfast, we reached the Salt Sulphur to dinner.—This is another sweet place at which a person can spend a Summer delightfully, and enjoy all the good things of life in the greatest abundance.

On my return I came back on the same road, leaving the Salt Sulphur after early breakfast, dining at the Salt Pond, and reaching the Montgomery White to tea.

A daily line of stages will ply between these points throughout the Summer, and from the Salt daily lines will run to the Old White, the Sweets, the Red, &c.

I have made up all the information that occurs to me as likely to be useful to your readers and must defer details for a future letter.

RIP SLAP.

For the "Pioneer."

COMPENSATION BILL.

W. N. H. Smith was in the habit in conducting the canvass in the eastern counties of this congressional district, of bringing up the passage of a bill passed by Congress fixing the yearly pay of members of the Congress of the U. S., at $3,000, as one of his charges against the Democratic party of corruption and extravagance.

That was a very small business, and was rather mere on the picayune and trifling order than we had expected to find a man of Mr. Smith's standing engaged in; such a thing might have had some palliation if it had come from some little "swipper-swapper" politician, who was really ignorant of what he might be talking about, after having caught up the false vote from some other person; but we were really surprised to hear such a charge, upon such a subject, brought forward in such a way by a man pretending to as much as Mr. Smith's friends claim for him. He ought to be above a charge so entirely wanting in truth and justice, without a foundation in fact to sustain it.

The truth is the bill was passed by what is known as the black-republican congress in which the Democrats were in the minority. It passed the House of Representatives Aug. 15th 1856 and the record shows the vote in favor of it.

Democrats	28
K. N's.	24
Blk Reps.	45
	100

In other words there were more than three to one of the votes given for the bill came from opposition members. The vote also shows that of the 37 regular K. N. or American party in that congress a large majority voted for this bill, while out of the 80 Democrats there, only 28 but very, very little over one third voted for it.

Now with what sort of pretensions to fairness or propriety can Mr. Smith or his friends bring the matter up or attempt to found upon it, a charge of corruption and extravagance against the Democratic party. This however is but another specimen of the political tricks that are to be practiced by the opposition in this canvass.

One would really think the opposition speakers were endeavoring to saddle the Democratic party with every political issue of which they themselves have been guilty.

V.

THE RECORD.

To the Western Sentinel we are indebted for the following carefully prepared record of the votes of Messrs. Shaw and Scales, Democratic candidates for Congress in the first and sixth Districts, upon the various appropriation bills that were before the first session of the last Congress.—To it we invite particular attention. The charge of ex ravagance against the Democratic party is the rallying cry of the 'Opposition,' and a candid examination of the record will show if their skirts are clear.—The Hon. J. A. Gilmer was the only Know Nothing representative from this State at the time these bills were voted upon, and for nearly every one of them is his vote recorded. Dr. Shaw defied his competitor in this place, to put his forger upon a vote of his, for any extravagant appropriation. He could not and did not do it, and the statement of his votes as they are taken from the Journal of the House, prove conclusively that he was always on the side of economy, whilst the 'lone star' of Knownothingism, Mr. Gilmer was almost invariably on the side of what his friends term extravagance.

We take up much of our space in publishing this statement from the Sentinel, but it could not be better occupied as it places before the people the faithful service which was sought to be rendered by our able representative, and shuts the months of those who having been, and are still, seeking to defeat him.

Democrats of the House refused to appropriate even that.—So that at one blow the 35th; Congress cut down the appropriations of a Black Republican and Know Nothing Congress $3,931,000.

A CARD.

EDITORS OF THE SOUTHERN ARGUS, Sirs—In the issue of your valued paper, published on the 4th inst. ago, you stated that a negro man, named Humed on Washington Point, had died suddenly. A post mortem examination held; and the verdict arrived at was that he died with congestion of the cholic.

In order to vindicate myself from the aspersion sought to be put upon me as the owner, Chas. H. Sheild, I feel it my duty to state the facts. The negro man was sick and died suddenly as stated in the above causes given, and his owner was entirely innocent of the fact, and ordered him to be buried on my premises. After the burial was complete, I found the owner had been guilty of the basest and most infamous falsehood in charging the negro woman who attended upon him with poisoning him. He relied as fast

He, Chas. H. Sheild, was known to me from reputation, and I believed his character has always stood as fair and honorable as his or any other living man. I am at a loss to account for his conduct, unless based on an intentional injury. I have felt it my duty to make this statement to the public, by whom I have been so long and favorably known, in order to correct any errors that may have obtained currency derogatory to me.

VALUABLE FARM FOR SALE.—

THE subscriber offers for sale his FARM situated in Craven County, on lower Broad and Orchard Creeks, near Neuse River, seven miles from the town of Jackson, containing 2500 acres, more or less, several hundred of which are prime Swamp Land, about 200 acres cleared, the remainder in woods, which is excellent timber, suitable for building or ship purposes.—There are about 100 acres ditched, deadened, under-bushed and the cord wood cut; a small amount of labor would prepare it for cultivation. There are also two crops of Turpentine Boxes on it.

The Land is well adapted to Cotton, Corn, Wheat, Potatoes, &c., and is highly susceptible of improvement. The facilities for shipping are rarely equalled.

The improvements consist of a fine large Dwelling, Kitchen, Smoke-House, Gin-House, Barns, Stables, and Negro Houses sufficient to accommodate Fifty Negroes, together with all other necessary out-buildings, in good order. The Garden and Orchard abound in a great variety of the choicest Fruits, viz: Grapes, Figs, Raspberries, Strawberries, Cherries, Apples, Pears and Peaches. Oysters and Fish may be taken in abundance from the creek at the back of the garden, and Wild Fowl, in great variety, abound in the vicinity—There is also a good mill site, with dam already constructed on the place. There is a good well of water in the yard.

The premises have the reputation of being healthy and the situation is desirable, and my only object in desiring to sell is the fact that I intend to quit farming.

Persons wishing to buy can apply to me on the premises, or to J. Gooding, sr., at Newbern.

Subscription price - - - - $1 00 per year.

With the view of securing the largest possible circulation among the masses of the people, the proprietors of THE STATES have determined to reduce the price of the Weekly paper to

THE STATES will be conducted with an exclusive regard to the principles of the State-rights Democracy, will be independent of factions, and unbiassed by partial interests—in short, will continue on the line it has pursued under its present management. We presume it has given a sufficient exemplification of its principles and objects to dispense with the necessity of any formal professions.

Located at the Federal Capital, THE STATES has great advantages over other journals in procuring important and valuable information relating to the affairs of government. Its central position also enables it to procure at the earliest moment the latest foreign and domestic news and in its columns will always be found matters of interest appertaining to Literature, Agriculture, and Commerce.

The price of subscription is fixed so low, that it brings the paper within the reach of every person who desires a good and reliable newspaper. We therefore appeal to our Democratic friends throughout the country to aid us in securing THE STATES an extended circulation.

To those who will take the trouble of getting us up a club of ten subscribers, at the rate of ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR for each subscriber, we will send a copy of the WEEKLY STATES for one year gratis.

Payments in all cases required in advance.

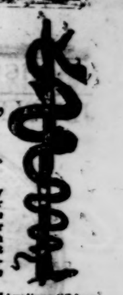
AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,



FOR THE RAPID CURE OF

Colds, Coughs, and Hoarseness.

BENFIELD, MASS., 20th Dec., 1856.

DR. J. C. AYER: I do not hesitate to say the best remedy I have ever found for Coughs, Hoarseness, Influenza, and the concomitant symptoms of a Cold, is your CHERRY PECTORAL. Its constant use in my practice and my family for the last ten years has shown it to possess superior virtues for the treatment of these complaints. ERRN KNIGHT, M. D.

A. B. MORTLEY, Esq., of UTICA, N. Y., writes: "I have used your Pectoral myself and in my family ever since you invented it, and believe it the best medicine for its purpose ever put out. With a bad cold I should scarcely pay twenty-five dollars for a bottle than do without it, or take any other remedy."

Croup, Whooping Cough, Influenza.

STANDFORD, MISS., Feb. 7, 1856.

BROTHER AYER: I will cheerfully certify your Pectoral is the best remedy we possess for the cure of whooping cough, croup, and the chief diseases of children. We of your fraternity in the South appreciate your skill, and commend your medicine to our people.

HIRAM CONKLIN, M. D.

AMOS LEE, ESQ., MONTMERY, IA., writes, 24 Jan., 1856: "I had a tedious Influenza, which confined me in doors six weeks; took many medicines without relief; finally tried your Pectoral by the advice of our physician. The first dose relieved the soreness in my throat and lungs; less than one half the bottle made me completely well. Your medicines are the cheapest as well as the best we can buy, and we esteem you, Doctor, and your remedies, as the poor man's friend."

THE CITY OF THE GREAT KING;

OR JERUSALEM AS IT WAS, AS IT IS, & AS IT IS TO BE.

BY DR. J. T. BARCLAY, Late Missionary to Jerusalem. With a Steel Portrait of the Author by Sartain. Also Chromographic Illuminations in ten oil colors, Periscopic Panorama of the entire Circuit of the City and Environs, explanatory Maps, &c., by Rosenthal. Steel Engravings by Sartain. J. C. Buttre, Dick and Earle. Finest Wood Engravings by Louderback & Hoffman and J. H. Byram.

The Engravings will be executed in the highest style of art, from Photographs and original designs illustrating the various phases of the City.—

ANCIENT, MEDIEVAL, MODERN AND MILLENNIAL,

Also, Restoration of the Temple and City as invested by Titus.—Notices of its Jewish, Christian, and Heathen Antiquities—Its Present Political and Moral Condition—Future Prospects, &c.

This work is the result of investigations made during three and a half years' residence in the Holy City, with facilities for prosecuting researches never heretofore enjoyed. It was undertaken with special reference to the elucidation of the Holy Scriptures, the Talmud, the Works of Josephus, the Crusaders, and Pilgrim Chroniclers. The many valuable discoveries made in the Temple Enclosure, and other sacred localities, to which Dr. Barclay was admitted by special Firman, with permission to explore those hallowed spots, so jealously guarded for many centuries, and now for the first time presented to the Christian public, will introduce a new era in Sacred Topography.

A VALUABLE FARM FOR SALE
IN NORFOLK CO., VA.

IT lies on the Dismal Swamp Canal, about 7 miles from Deep Creek and 14 from Norfolk, and contains from 1200 to 1500 acres, about 150 to 200 of which are now in arable order, the balance in original forest.

The soil is adapted to the production of Indian corn and other crops usually cultivated in that section. About 5 or 600 acres of the tract would make as fine a farm as any in Eastern Virginia; adjoining lands of similar quality unimproved, have produced from 14 to 15 barrels of corn per acre, and the wood and timber on the land would pay every expense of clearing, when it would be worth $50 per acre.

It presents, also, great facilities for carrying on the wood business. Immense quantities of the best quality could be sold at paying prices at Norfolk or on the Canal bank, along which the land stretches for several miles. The facilities of water carriage would also render the trucking business profitable.

There is a large Juniper swamp on the tract, valuable for its rail and shingle timber.

The pasturage and range for Stock is unsurpassed. A free School is within one mile of the dwelling. Persons desirous of purchasing are referred to Messrs. George T. Wallace and John West, who live near the place, and to Mr. Benjamin T. Tatem, near Norfolk, who will take pleasure in showing the land.

For further information and terms, which will be liberal, apply to

JOSEPH T. TATEM.

INFIRMARY FOR SLAVES.
ELIZABETH CITY, N. C.

THE SUBSCRIBER has opened at the Marine Hospital (in a separate building) an INFIRMARY FOR INVALID SLAVES. He has ample accommodations for a limited number, and will give them his careful attention—supplying them with every necessary their case requires. An Institution of this kind offers many advantages to masters having servants afflicted with chronic or surgical diseases. And, from its economy, they are relieved of the expense and annoyance of having such upon a plantation.

The charges for Board, Medical attendance, Nursing, and Medicine, are $6 per week, payable upon the removal of the patient.

In cases requiring a surgical operation, in addition to the above rates, a fee varying from $2 to $30, in different cases, will be charged for the operation, the particulars of which may be ascertained upon application at the Infirmary.

The services of any other regular Physician will be allowed, at the expense of the master.

Persons in the country desiring to send patients to the Infirmary, or obtain information concerning it, may address the subscriber.

☞ No contagious diseases admitted.
